Poised at the edge of the City & Docklands, Bow is ideally placed for business and pleasure. As London expands, Docklands attracts more and more businesses as the Capital's playgrounds move East. This is fast becoming the centre of it all.

Nearby Stratford is soon to become a destination of major international importance with its own Eurostar Terminal directly linked to Paris, with enough retail and office space to rival any other London Urban Quarter and just four minutes from the DLR.

So in short, living in Bow will put you in the hearts of an area that's really taking off.

An urban melting pot of old and new, you'll still find pie and mash and bargains galore on Roman Road's famous market. Bars, restaurants, cafes and clubs are burgeoning in the area, creating a buzz that's set to last.
